DEPARTMENT OF INDUSTRIES AND LABOUR.

Simla, the 29th July 1931.

No. S.-465.—In their Resolution No. S.-465, dated the 5th December 1929, which was published in Part I of the Gazette of India of the 7th December 1929, the Government of India announced the arrangement made with Messrs Kendel, Palmer and Tritton, the Consulting Engineers to the High Commissioner for India, for the establishment of a Branch office of the firm in India for the successful working of the rupee tender system, the rules relating to which were promulgated with their Resolution No. S.-217, dated the 12th December 1929, which was published in the supplement to the Gazette of India, dated the 14th December 1929.

2. The branch office was opened in Calcutta in December 1929 and it was decided that it would operate for a period of three years in the first instance. The services of the branch office were made available to Departments of the Central, Provincial and minor local Governments.

3. The question of the continuance of the present arrangement which will expire at the end of November 1931, has been reviewed by the Government of India. It is considered that before the expiration of this period the rupee tender system will have been fairly well established, while the standardization of railway and other stores in respect of which the organization is required to provide expert advice has also developed considerably. For these reasons and in the interests of economy, the Government of India have decided that the existing arrangement should not be extended beyond the period for which it is at present sanctioned.

The area in these districts fell from 161,300 acres to 95,500 acres, viz., by 41 per cent. The yield of the second or summer pickings is expected to be below normal owing to want of good showers in April-May.

3. Deccan or Northern and Western tract.—The area in Bellary rose from 38,000 acres to 55,000 acres owing to the good showers received in June. There has been a reduction in area in the other districts.

4. Circars or Cocanadas tract.—The area in Guntur fell from 15,000 acres to 11,000 acres.

5. The wholesale price of cotton lint per bale of 400 lb. is reported to have fallen as compared with the prices reported in April. The present prices are Rs. 72 for Cocanadas, Rs. 76 for Westerns and White Northerns, Rs. 118 for Tirupur Cambodia, and Rs. 190 for Karungani.

GINGELLY CROP OF 1931-32—FIRST FORECAST REPORT.

[On an average of the five years ending 1929-30, the area under gingelly in the Madras Presidency has represented 12·8 per cent of the total area under gingelly in India.]

The area sown with gingelly up to the end of July 1931 is estimated at 332,100 acres as against 370,400 acres on the corresponding date of last year. The reduction in area is about 12·5 per cent: It occurs mainly in Ganjam, Salem, and Coimbatore and is due to want of timely sowing rains in May and June.

GROUNDNUT CROP OF 1931—SECOND FORECAST REPORT.

The area under summer or irrigated groundnut in the districts of South Arcot, Chittoor, North Arcot and Tanjore up to the end of May 1931 is estimated at 76,000 acres against 70,200 acres on the corresponding date of last year. The large reduction in area mainly in South Arcot is due to want of rains during the sowing period and to the fall in the price of groundnut. The crop was affected by drought to some extent in South Arcot and Chittoor and by the attack of insects in South Arcot. The total yield is estimated at 30,600 tons of unshelled nuts against 62,700 tons on the corresponding date of last year.

2. The early crop of groundnut (mostly unirrigated) sown up to the end of July 1931 in the districts of Salem and Coimbatore is estimated at 120,000 acres against 182,000 acres on the corresponding date of last year. The reduction in area is also mainly to the fall in the price of groundnut. The crop was affected by the attack of hairy caterpillar in Salem and by drought in Coimbatore. The total yield is estimated at 57,000 tons of unshelled nuts against 86,500 tons on the corresponding date of last year.

3. The wholesale price of groundnut, unshelled per candy of 500 lb. is reported as Rs. 20 in South Arcot against Rs. 18 to 24 reported towards the end of December 1930. The price in Coimbatore is now Rs. 15 to 16½.

Act I of 1918.

54. Notwithstanding anything contained in this Act, the provisions of the Mappilla Succession Act of 1918 will continue to apply in so far as it is applicable.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The communities governed by the Marumakkatayam and Aliyasantanam law have been asking for the legal recognition of the customary marital union prevailing among them. The Malabar Marriage Act of 1896 was passed in response to this demand. But that legislation is a very imperfect measure and has failed to meet the requirements of the people concerned. It does not legalize the Sambandham, but provides for the optional registration of marital unions to invest them with validity. The machinery set up is against the sentiments and genius of the race, and only a few marriages have been registered under the Act.

All the same, the desire for obtaining legal sanction for the Sambandham has been steadily growing. In every other respect the community has advanced by leaps and bounds Progressive ideas have gained ground everywhere. The social system alone remains unchanged. The refusal of the Court to regard the Sambandham as a legal marriage has stamped one of the most enlightened classes in this country as an inferior race and prevented it from growing to its fullest natural stature The tarwad is no longer the centre and focus of marumakkattayam life Men have outgrown the system imposed upon them and the social stream is flowing along more natural channels. The main object of this Bill is to adjust the social system to the changing needs of the society.

The Bill seeks to invest the Sambandham with all the incidents of a legal marriage. This may look, in theory, like a great departure from the existing state of things; but it is, in truth, no more than giving a formal legal sanction to what, in practice, is regarded as a sacred and lifelong union.

Apart from marriage and inheritance, the need for a law providing for partition has long been felt. The tarwads have expanded beyond all natural limits so much so that it is often difficult to trace the exact relationship of the members composing them. The consequence has been ruinous litigation. There is hardly a family of substance in Malabar that is not in the courts. Suits for maintenance instituted by the junior members are a common feature of marumakkattayam and aliyasantana life. There are instances of crime committed on account of family quarrels. The Bill endeavours to remedy this evil by providing for partition in rather a conservative fashion. It does not create the right to individual partition, but only to tavazhi partition, partly as a concession to orthodox opinion, and partly by way of abundant caution.

It may be pointed out that the adjoining States of Cochin and Travancore have passed regulations on lines exactly similar to those adopted in this Bill. As marriages between British subjects and the subjects of these States are of common, every-day occurrence, it has become imperative to bring Malabar also into line with them.

The important features of the Bill are:—

(1) The recognition of the Sambandham as a legal marriage; the marriage of a marumakkettayam woman with a man of higher caste with whom marriage is permitted by custom being equally valid and binding.

(2) The right of free divorce.

(3) The enforcement of monogamy in all cases.

(4) The right of wife and children to maintenance from the husband or father as the case may be.

(5) The right of wife and children to inherit a moiety of the undisposed of self-acquisition of husband or father, the other moiety going to his tavazhi (not the tarwad).

(6) The right of tavazhi partition.

(7) The accountability of the karnavan and the restriction of his powers.

(8) Provision for the registration of tarwad as impartible and also for the cancellation of such registration.

(9) A Bill on the above lines was introduced into the third Legislative Council by Mr. K. Madhavan Nayar and it met with popular approval. Only a few minor verbal alterations have been made by me in the Bill.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

1. The Nambudiris though numerically not very large, constitute an important community on the West Coast. In the pre-British days their influence in all affairs of the country was very nearly supreme. But since the Government of the country passed from the hands of the Rajas the Nambudiris have been gradually losing their importance and now they have almost become a backward class

2. The most important reason for the present unenviable position of the Nambudiris is that their social and economic systems are so obsolete and rigid that they are practically helpless in effecting any progress. Their rules of marriage compel many woman to remain life-long maids and many men to seek women outside their community. With the advent of democratic Government in this country the numerical strength of the community has become a very important question. The Nambudiris cannot hope to exercise any influence on the political life of the country unless their number is proportionate to their stake. Thus for the sake of numerical strength and healthier domestic life it has become imperative to give the members of the community greater opportunities for marrying within the community. The satisfaction of this imperative need is the main object of this Bill. The Bill enables every member to marry within caste. When all or many marry within caste, the present economic system cannot continue and so members are given the right to claim partition under certain conditions. There are very few Nambudiris who have taken advantage of the present education. The right to partition given by this Bill is expected to give a great impetus to the progress of education in the community. As it is not desirable to abolish the joint-family system all on a sudden, wherever possible provisions are made for the continuance of joint-family life and special provision is made for reunion. Under modern conditions of life, rigid observance of caste rules has become an impossibility and the community cannot make progress unless the members are allowed some amount of freedom from ultra-orthodox social rules. The social freedom that the Brahmans of other parts of India enjoy in practice is largely responsible for their great advancement. Some provision is therefore made to mitigate the rigours of caste rules.

3. The Law relating to Nambudiris is in a very uncertain state. Much of it is regulated by custom and usage. All that is attempted by this legislation is to make such alterations or modifications which are absolutely necessary to enable the community to continue to live under modern conditions. To leave the community as it is, is to allow it to die in a few decades. The Nambudiris of Travancore have already succeeded in moving their Legislative Assembly to make certain alterations in their laws which it is hoped the Maharaja Regent would assent to and they are trying to make more to enable them to live better. The Nambudiris of Malabar also have been agitating for some time past to have legislative sanction for certain changes in their laws. Rao Bahadur O. M. Narayanan Nambudiripad, ex-M.L.C., got the sanction of the Viceroy to introduce a Bill relating to various matters concerning Nambudiris but he did not introduce it in the Council. The agitation is getting stronger and the younger section of the Nambudiris is getting very impatient. The Yogakshema Sabha, the organisation of the Nambudiris, and the Nambudiri Yuvajana Sangham, which is an organisation of the Nambudiri youths, have demanded various changes. This Bill represents a kind of compromise between the conservative and the advanced opinions among Nambudiris. It is hoped that the Bill would pave the way for a great advancement of the Nambudiri community.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

There is much dissatisfaction with the present management of the temples in Tirumalai-Tirupati and Tiruchanur known as Tirumalai-Tirupati, etc., Devasthanams in the Chittoor district. It is widely believed that unwary pilgrims are misled into making their offerings at wrong quarters so that there is an unlawful diversion of gifts really intended for the deity. The estates belonging to the devasthanams do not appear to be managed in an efficient and economical way so as to ensure a reasonable return on the funds invested therein. There are persistent complaints as to want of adequate supervision over the supply of articles required for the services in the temples and for the preparation of prasadams (food and other eatables prepared in the temples) offered to the deity, as also over the construction of buildings and other works required in the interests of the devasthanams. There is also imperative need to provide better accommodation for pilgrims at Tirumalai and to make better sanitary arrangements, especially in the neighbourhood of the temple at Tirumalai.

2. There is a large staff employed to carry on the secular administration of the devasthanams besides the establishment attached to the educational institutions maintained at the cost of the devasthanams. Satisfactory arrangements do not seem to exist to ensure the proper performance of the duties entrusted to them in the absence of an efficient supervising agency. The conditions of service of the staff seem to be precarious as no rules are in force to ensure stability, reasonable prospects of promotion and the advantages of a provident fund.

3. The Mahant of the Huthiramjee Math, who is the Vicharanakartha of the temples in question, is chosen from among the disciples of the Moth and it will not always be possible to find a suitable disciple, who possesses the high administrative ability required for the management of the secular affairs of the devasthanams combined with religious learning and zeal necessary to look after the proper performance of the religious functions and services in the temples. It seems, therefore, desirable to provide for the employment of a whole-time paid executive officer to be in charge of the secular affairs of the devasthanams who could control and supervise the work of the staff employed for their administration, while the religious affairs may be looked after by the Vicharanakartha. Appropriate ways of utilising the surplus funds of the devasthanams have to be devised with a view to derive the maximum benefit therefrom for the public good. Any institutions that may be thus established such as a University will have to be properly managed and provided for. Hence the appointment of an officer known as Commissioner of the Tirumalai-Tirupati Devasthanams has been provided for in the Bill

4. To carry out the necessary reforms and revise the existing arrangements the provisions of the Madras Hindu Religious Endowments Act are not adequate. The existing scheme settled by the Privy Council to regulate the management of the devasthanams is found in practice to be defective in many respects. The District Court has been given certain powers in this scheme They are not adequate as, for instance, it cannot interfere with the budget which is merely filed in the court for its information. Further, the court cannot find time to exercise any real supervision over the several branches of the administration which are expanding and are bound to expand further as time goes on. The Hindu Religious Endowments Board has vast experience of the affairs of temples in the Presidency. It is a special body constituted to supervise their administration. As such it may regulate the management of the devasthanams in question by its by-laws and by exercising general control, while details of the secular affairs are left to be managed by the Commissioner whose appointment is contemplated. The Bill provides for such regulation and control by the Board.

5. Any attempt to have the scheme suitably modified in order to effect the reforms and improvements referred to above will involve costly and protracted litigation. The only practicable step under the existing circumstances seems therefore to be the passing of a separate Act to ensure the better management of the Tirumalai-Tirupati, etc., Devasthanams, which are the most important of all the temples in the whole Presidency. The object of the present Bill is to achieve this end.

6. Any member of a tarwad shall be at liberty to give up the right of management as karnavan by an unilateral surrender, whether before or after such management become vested in him by law. If the karnavan surrenders his right of management in favour of any particular anandravan, then all the karnavan's right and duties shall be vested in that anandravan during such period as the karnavan would have been entitled to exercise them had he not

7. When a karnavan makes an alienation of tarwad property or incur a debt alleging the existence of family necessity, such necessity shall as between the transferee or creditor on the one part and the members of the tarwad who have not assented to the alienation or debt on the other part, be deemed to have existed if the transferee or the creditor after using reasonable care to ascertain the existence of such necessity, has acted in good faith.

10. Subject to the conditions laid down in clauses (a) and (b) of section 9 or with the consent of the ascendants referred to in clause (b) each thavazhi represented by the majority of the major members thereof, may claim an outright partition of all property common to all the thavazhis, over which the tarwad has a power of disposal.

A male who has no female ascendant living may obtain his share and separate from the thavazhi and tarwad.

11. Each of such thavazhis shall be entitled as a whole to so much of the common property as would fall to the shares of the members of that thavazhi, if a division per capita were made of all the property among all the living members of all the thavazhis.

CHAPTER V.

Adoption.

12. Where a tarwad consists of only one or more members or only one or more female members past the period of child-bearing or of both, the karnavan may, where there is more than one member with the consent in writing of all the members of the tarwad, or where he is the sole living member of the tarwad by himself, make an adoption of either a male or a female or both. The adoptee shall have in the adoptor's family all rights and duties as appertain to the members born therein.

CHAPTER VI.

Impartibility

13. Any tarwad wishing to exclude itself from the operation of the section as to partition in this Act may within six months of the passing of this Act notify its intention of impartibility by registering its name as an impartible tarwad in the office of the Collector of Malabar.

Notice of such intention as specified by the last section shall be given by not less than two-thirds of the major members of each thavazhi of the tarwad concerned.

14. On receipt of such notice, the Collector shall, at the expense of the applicants, issue notice to all the members of the tarwad and if the notice is agreed to by the majority as provided by the last section, register the tarwad as an impartible tarwad.

15. It shall be competent for a tarwad registered as impartible to exempt itself from the provisions of this chapter by a further notice stating its desire to cancel the registration previously made, provided that such notice shall be agreed to and signed by not less than two-thirds of the major members of each thavazhi of the said tarwad

On receipt of such notice the Collector shall cancel the registration of impartibility.

16. The Collector shall keep a register of all such applications and orders as provided for in this chapter and such register shall be open to the public who shall be allowed copies of such registers.

CHAPTER VII.

Supplementary Chapter.

17. Where a female member of a malikhana-holder's or sthani's tarwad marries a marumakkathayee male who is not a member of a such tarwad, such female and all her descendants shall acquire all the rights and duties, including the right to partition from her tarwad conferred by this Act on a marumakkathayee who is not a member of malikhana-holder's or sthani's family.

18. The provisions of chapters I, II, III and V, shall apply also to members of malikhana-holder's or sthani's tarwads.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The Acts which have been passed in the Native States of Travancore and Cochin to legitimize sambhandhams practically codifies the customary law of the country about the marumakkathayam joint family property and this Bill seeks to enact those provisions substantially for Malabar as the people are of the same race as in the Native States and introduces practically no innovation except in one particular. Hitherto the right of partition has not been recognized by Courts of Law, although there has been a feeling in the country that there should be such partition. The evils due to the absence of that right and the absolute power of the karnavan for management have been set out in the Report of the Malabar Marriage Commission. The people now require that they should be given that right. I have exempted from the operation of this law the families of the old ruling chieftains and those who occupy a similar position. The partition can be claimed only by a thavazhi technically so called, i.e., a woman and her descendants. However in order not to depart from what has hitherto been the practice in the case of those families which wish to retain the existing custom, provision has been made for a declaration at the request of two-thirds of the members of each thavazhi composing the tarwad that the entire tarwad will be impartible.
